England has pretensions to a protectorate ver the Mosquito Indians, who claim a part of Nicaragua, and also claims some possessions in the Balize. We have not been disposed to allow either of these claims; whilst England has not been disposed to surrender them. When Judge Hise, of this State, was Charge to Central America, he made a treaty with Nicaragua, in which we obtained all that we could desire. This trenty was presented to Mr. Clay ton; but as he was then engaged in making a treaty with England, he laid aside this Hige treaty, and proceeded to negotiate with Bulwer, and produced a treaty which was ratified by both England and the United States. By sons anworthy of their street, Forever be effaced; For surely we should brothers be. Bound by the sacred the that cling

And may the apirit of the times. That tried the pairlot's soul Restore us to the good old path.

For hearts in myriads fondly beat, Afar o'er land and sea, The faster for their cherished dreams Of liberty and theel
And all that's good and beantiful

Springs from thy gen'rous soil, To bless and cheer the manly heart That lives by honest toll.

Then surely we should brothers be, In heart as well as hand,

For why should traitors rend thy heart, Yet unabash'd go forth
Ou soll of thine that scorned to bear The names of South or North! When hand to hand and heart to heart

To thee-my chosen land!

Their peerless fathers fought For freedom and for thee-the land-One blood and treasure bonglit? But ah! how little did they dream, When these to them were born, llow soon the Union they achieved By factions should be toru. Then surely we should brothers be, In heart as well as hand, Bound by the sacred tles that cling To thee-my chosen land!

Green be the graves, and greener still The memory, of those Whose swords gave freedom unto thee-Confusion to thy fore!-Who braved alike the summer's heat And winter's bitter cold,

With more than Roman fortlinde Or Spartan pride of old. And Bunker Hill Inspired the brave Their pan ting souls to gorge With glory; but what charms Inspired The brave at Valley Forge? Ah! surely we should brothers be, In heart as well as hand,

HARDINSBURG, Kv., Dec. 15, 1858. Messrs. EDITORS: Having recently passed through the counties of Breckinridge, Grayson, Edmondson and Barreu, we think that some notice of what we gleaned in that not very barren field may not be unacceptable to your many

My road lay through quite an interesting portion of these counties, at least to the philosopher, the antiquarian and, in the spring, summer and autumu months, to the seeker of pleasure—to the lover of the beautiful and the sublime in nature. Some parts of these counties, however, are rather too sparsely populated for the politician; but the philosopher may learu much of the philosophy of nature, and speculate here, freely, upon that great science, geology; and the antiquarian may get to be Grayeon county, and a considerable portion of Breckinridge, like many other counties in market that they have attained their majority without being developed. There is more good land in these counties than a careless looker-on would imagine; more coal, iron ore, and other indications of latent wealth, which will never be brought to light under the present miserable road system—the present niggardly system of tions, improvement generally. There must be more mail facilities, lest intellectual improvement lag far in the rear of the tardy physical improvement of the country. The people in the the world is getting on around them; but with this yawning, moping, dormant state of the public spirit of the country, we shall yawn on for-

Good roads are needed to this important point, and the day may not be very far distant when this whole country will be dotted over with good farms and a thriving population.

Leaving this romantic spot, we traveled on to the Mammoth Cave—a distance of about twenty five miles—over an excellent country road, though through a country sparsely populated. The Cave-one of nature's mightiest freaks-we shall not attempt to describe: neither shall we attempt to describe the blandness of mine host, Mr. Proctor; nor yet what nymphs preside over the Cave—for, upon going its mouth, we were waked from a reverie by the presence of two. TACT AND TALENT .- Talent is something but tact is everything ; talent is serious, sobe grave, respectable; tact is all that, and more too. It is not an additional sense, but it is the life of the five ; it is the open eye, the quiet ear, the judging taste, the keen smell, and the tively touch. Talent is power, tact is skill. Talent is power, tact is skill. talent is weght, tact is momentum, talent knows what to do, tact knows bow to do it. When you find a combination of both tact and talent in the same individual, you may set it down that he is equal to any emergency; and that is why J. M. Armstrong, the great clothier, is succeeding so well in his business. He knows what to buy, and when to buy it; he knows how to combine the useful with the or namental; he displays his clothing and furnishing goods so that ther merits are easily dis tinguished, and his tact tells him that more money is made by selling two dolars' worth of goods, at fitteen per cent. profit, than one dol tensive trade. what were her intentions, where she is going, &c. It is supposed that she was not entirely unknown to every one on the boat, but no queetions could elicit the truth.

We were no little gratified to find that our article of yesterday morning, in reference to Cincinnati boats and competition, met with very general favor, not only among merchants and shippers, but river men also. There is our point of view in which we do not think our neighbor, nor river men also. There is our point of view in which we do not think our neighbor, nor river men generally, have looked at this matter. To refuse freight to a boat because she offers to take it at lower rates than other boats, is to establish an experituriff, infinitely more objectionable than a tax on imports. As in political economy, it is an axiom, that a country, to increase its trade with other countries, and thus enrich itself, should open its ports wide for the world's competition, inviting vessels of every nation to assist in carrying its products abroad, so with a city. If she desires ber business to increase and enrich herself, she must not enact an export tariff, driving trade away from her to other cities that act upon a different principle. Other considerations, in reference to this natter we will present as time and room permit.

will be beneficial to the advancement of American interests and general liberty. We stated in our letter of July last that there were in this city over two hundred discontented Paraguayans and friends of liberty who would gladly join the expedition. We repeat our statement. These are no hireling hands, but bold souls, who cannot brook tyranny or wrong.

Important Decision.—Y esterday afternoon the motion for the discharge of the petition in the case of Weingartner vs. Frederick, Sheriff, &c., was argued before Judge Perkins at the Supreme Court room in Indianapolis, by Hon.

A. L. Roach, formerly one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and Thos. M. Brown for the petitioner, and by Judge T. L. Smith and John II. Stotemburg for the city. Judge Perkins sustained the ordinance as being authorized by the charter, remarking that it was by no means free from douts, but that he was ready and willing to give a summary decision upon the merits, as that seemed to be the wish of all parties. Weingartner was then remanded to the custody of the Sheriff.

It will thus be seen that the liquor sellers will be compelled to take out license in obedience to the ordinance on that subject and the order of Judge Perkins. We are sure a large majority of our citizens will rejoice at this decision, as it places these houses under some sort of control and at the same time yields a considerable revenue to the city.

Will exchange for Western Lands In a good locality. sensation in fashionable circles has been created by a ball given by the flag officer of the American squadron, on board the St. Lawrence. The elite of the Brazilian Court were present. From Paraguay we have information of new concessions to Brazilian trade made by Lopez. Preparations were making to celebrate the dictator's birthday, but none apparently to meet the com-ing expedition from the United States. N. Y. Times, 18th.

POSTAGE TO SPAIN.—The United States postage only is required to be prepaid in this country on letters to Spain, including Majorca, Minorca, and the Canary Islands, forwarded in the British mail via England. Postmasters will require prepayment in all cases of the United States postage, viz: 21 cents the single rate of half an ounce or under, when the Atlantic conveyance is by United States steamers, and five cents when by British steamers—leaving the British and foreign postage to be collected at lestination in Spain.
